

What happens to a relationship when one person is indifferent or simply takes the other for granted? Do you say nothing, hold the cards you're dealt, talk it out? How would you cope with losing the one you love? How do you feel just being "Together Alone"?

Together Alone is a song that looks closely at relationships, the jeopardy and pain that one half feels when the other grows cold. It's a story that has been weaved into countless classic movies, TV series and stories. But if it's being felt for real, wow. I try to imagine how devastating this could be.
